Description: Stamp Out Hunger is the nation's largest one-day food drive, and the summer season and children being home from school offers a unique need for additional food at local food pantries. United Way partners with the National Association of Letter Carriers in asking community members on their route to put out nonperishable food to be donated to local food banks. Food collected will help to benefit families that are in need locally and increase the supply of food to sustain the pantries through the summer months.

To participate, simply set out nonperishable food donations by your home's mailbox or community mailbox and mail carriers will pick up donations to take back to the post office where they will be immediately distributed to local pantries!
